No, it's not like you have to stay home to work on your taxes. That excuse will run out by the time this rolls around. And it's not Saturday, so it's not like you'd have to bathe.

As usual, the agenda will be to talk and eat ... mostly talk, but occasionally there's time for a bite. If you don't believe us, take a look at the website to see who has attended past lunches and you'll understand why sometimes things don't break up until close to two o'clock.

You're more than welcome to bring a friend, a significant other, an exemption or a deduction ... even your designated driver. Kathi Swank even brings her husband sometimes, perhaps against her better judgment.

If you think you'll be able to make it, let Susi know at tssbjh@aol.com, just so we have a guesstimate on numbers. We'll be glad to see you, even if you only show up by mistake. But as always, come, even if it's a last-minute thing. And be sure to spread the word.

So, if you don't have any medical appointments written down on the kitchen calendar, why not join us? You know, we'll talk about you if you're not here!
